PRINCIPAL PHOTOGRAPHY BY ERICA GEORGE DINES

A private home on West Wesley Road was the site of the 2011 Decorators' Show House & Gardens, which featured the handiwork of more than 30 designers and local craftsmen. Celebrated designer Barry Dixon of Warrenton, Virginia, added a fresh perspective to our local design vernacular, as well as an abundance of inspiration for visitors to the house. Classicist architectural designer William T. Baker crafted the residence, called "Lotus House," for an Indian American family who took residence there at the conclusion of the tour.

All That Glitters

DINING ROOM, MELANIE TURNER

The dining room featured the sparkle and shimmer of silver and gold, along with crystal and porcelain—all reflected in antiqued mirror. A polyptych painting by Thomas Swanson anchored the voluminous, light-filled space.

Stylish Sophistication

FOYER, CHERYL LUCAS & JACKIE COTTRILL

A modern console juxtaposed with a collection of framed intaglios made a powerful first impression on visitors to the home. Curved walls, herringbone floors and exquisite paneling rounded out the eclectic mix.

Form & Function

KITCHEN, CHRISTY DILLARD

Savvy concealed storage flanked a Wolf range, the heart of the chef's kitchen. Unique stone and wood selections added finesse and élan to the utilitarian space.

Upon Reflection PUJA ROOM, RAYMOND GOINS

Custom daybeds and a hand-painted screen exhibited an understated elegance in the home's spiritual center.

Bright Ideas

OVERLOOK TERRACE, BARBARA HEATH

Against a creamy white backdrop, luxurious lounge chairs and brightly colored accessories aided in blurring the lines between indoors and out.

En Plein Air

ROOF TERRACE, DAN BELMAN AND RANDY KORANDO

By melding a classic blue-and-white color scheme with modern furnishings, the design of the home's rooftop terrace was taken to a whole new level.
